CARNATIONS.

Carnations that around me shed,
Tonight, a perfume passioned,
As with the incense rising o'er
The altars where dear Love doth pour
His wine and break his bread,
You wreathe the portals of that door
That entered once I pass no more!
What wonder that I love, yet dread,
Carnations?

I dread you, yet I love you more,
Though Danger's in each crimson core!
On Beauty's breast you've made your bed,
From Beauty's lips you've rifled your red;
I think that Cleopatra wore
Carnations!

—Boston Globe.

71 AND 72.

They met at the Mont de Piete. This office of pledges and redemptions—this Parisian shrine of poverty and central altar of official usury—was crowded. A long line like a torpidly winding serpent stretched itself lazily far out into the Rue des Blancs-Manteaux. For several hours the clerk behind his grated window has droned out the numbers as he bent his worn face above the greasy book in which he is busy inscribing names and addresses.

"Again? So soon? And still pretty?" with a vicious smile. "Lace pin—with small diamond—hum! Twenty francs for 71. Pass on quickly! Next! Well! And you? A carved crucifix. Ivory? No. Five francs for 72."

"No more?"

"No more. Take or leave. You detain others. Decide."

No. 72 hesitates. Suddenly a rough hand tugs at her shabby shawl. She turns. It is No. 71. A moment later the two girls stand side by side in the street.

"Here! Take this," mutters 71. "I insist. I stole your luck by my odd number. Besides—it is to cheat the devil. No? Why? What a little fool!"

No. 72 has a face like a pale flame. Her lips are blue, and much shivering has rounded her thin shoulders. 71 is ready, facile, a feminine gamin. She thrives on Paris as a dandelion flaunts from the crevice of a paving stone. The one is smiling, yet dumb with amazement. The other talks, laughs, yet will never smile again.

"Tut! A few francs! What are they to me? And I shall redeem my pin tomorrow, while you"— a glance completed the sentence.

"And I—it was that I might celebrate Paul's fete day."

"You live"——

"At No. —, an attic in the Rue Sainte Marguerite. He—Paul—works at the theater. It is a good position, but it requires that he appear well to keep it. This eats his earnings as a moth eats feathers. We are from the south—Paul and I. He is happy here—but I"——

"Amuse yourself by starving that he may—oh! I comprehend. Here!"—and she draws her into a wine shop. "Waiter! A basket! Now fill it! First—a bottle of wine, then a sugared loaf—then a pate—some of those. 'Tis I who shall supply Paul's feast. But on one condition, my friend—that you eat your half. And the wine is for you." Paying the waiter, 71 drops the change into the loaded basket.

"And I who accept this—do not yet know your name!" No. 72 is grateful, but there are no tears. Tears are a luxury with the poor.

"Call me—No. 71."

"I shall call you—my saint."

"Anything but that, my girl. Well—72—I shall see you again." And she watches her stagger away beneath her burden.

"Mademoiselle is generous!" ventures the waiter, who has followed them outside the shop.

"Nonsense! It is my caprice! She is dying—that girl. It is written. And her Paul? A fine, selfish scamp, I'll warrant." And with a laugh and a whirl on her heel she hurries away.

* * * * * * *

One year in a Parisian garret. One year of green country quiet exchanged for the lullaby of Paris—that mother who too often sings her babies to their deaths. To be sure, there has always been Paul, and looking in his eyes Jeanne could forget her homesickness. And with his arm for a pillow, her straw had not seemed a hard bed. But he was forced to be at the theater early and late. And nowadays his absences were growing longer. Jeanne fancied at times that he was less tender. Paul was tired—tired of being poor. Was it that Poverty was pinching Love to death? She did not know—but felt a chill about her heart—a dangerous thing when the body is also cold.

Some one else would beat the ragout on Paul's next fete day. But Paul came and went and noticed nothing.

One night in his sleep Jeanne heard him utter a name.

She leaned to listen, but he said no more, only smiling in his sleep. She thought it was "Susanne." In the morning she questioned him.

"I was dreaming. What of it?" said he, staring floorward.

Before he went away that morning he drew her fondly toward him and tenderly kissed her rough and reddened slender hands. It was a revival of love, Jeanne thought, and sang softly to herself all of that day. Life was easier after this. Paul grew more kind, and a new pleasure was also hers.

She did not know that it is a man's way when he loves one to kiss the other dumb.

And every day at noon her "saint" came for an hour. Every day, in some small way, Jeanne's small wants grew smaller. Every day 71 sat by 72 upon the low straw pallet and laughed and jested until Jeanne grew merry from sheer contagion.

"We will thank her together—when you are well again, my Jeanne, and find out also her real name," Paul would say in his absentminded way.

When Jeanne was well again!

One morning she seemed suddenly so weak that Paul found it impossible to leave her. For the first time he became uneasy. She did not complain, merely remaining strangely quiet. And her eyes shone as on that night beneath the lindens long ago. The night they first spoke of a marriage—their own.

"But it is nothing," she murmured while her starry eyes looked past him across the glaring roofs so coldly bright in the wintry sunlight. It was broad day in Paris, but in Jeanne's life candle time had come.

"Paul!"

"My Jeanne!"

"You love me?"

"My little one! How can you ask? You break my heart!"

"As dearly as ever, Paul?"

"As dearly as ever." And Paul softly stroked a very happy face.

Just then, above the lullaby with which Paris was singing Jeanne to sleep, some rollicking, distant bells rang out the hour. Jeanne raised herself upon her elbow, and with one hand threw back the drooping locks from her little white ear.

"Hark!"

As they listened they heard a merry clatter of high heels on the bare stairway.

"It is—No. 71!"

As she spoke a piquant figure stood framed within the low doorway.

"Paul!—my saint!"

And then two stood alone in the little sunny garret, for just at that moment Jeanne's soul fled.

"Susanne! You—her saint!" and with a hoarse cry Paul dropped the dead hand on the straw.

"And so—to her, you were Paul! My God!"

And Jeanne?

A little smile stole softly about her lips. It was Death, who in joke had tricked Life out of one sorrow.—Johanna Staats in Romance.

Seed Farms of the United States.

The first report ever made through the census office of the statistics of the seed farms of the United States affords these figures. Only such farms as are devoted to seed growing as a business are included: There is a total of 596 farms in the United States devoted exclusively to seed production. These farms occupy 169,851 acres of land, of which 96,567 acres were reported as devoted to seed production during the census year. This industry represents a total value of farms, implements and buildings of $18,325,935, and employed in 1890, 13,500 men and 1,541 women.

Of the 596 seed farms in the United States, 258, or nearly one-half, are in the North Atlantic division, the original center of seed production. These farms have an acreage of 47,813, or an average of 185 acres per farm, while in the north central division there are 157 farms, with an acreage of 87,096, or an average of 555 acres per farm. The seed farms of Massachusetts and Connecticut average 142 acres per farm, while those of Iowa and Nebraska are 695 acres in extent, and are producing seeds on a scale of equal magnitude to the other products of that section of the country.

So far as reported there were but 2 seed farms in the country previous to 1800 (one of these was established in Philadelphia in 1784, and the other at Enfield, N. H., in 1795), only 3 in 1820, 6 in 1830, 19 in 1840, 34 in 1850, 53 in 1860, 100 in 1870, 207 in 1880 and 200 more were established between 1880 and 1890, leaving 189 unaccounted for as to date of establishment.

It Spoiled the Play.

I remember a play that received its death blow in Leadville. It was a border drama called "The Man from Texas," written by a local newspaper man, and from the number of people killed in it I think it would have made a great hit at a morgue. The manager scared up a stock company for it—all variety folks, and the part of heroine was intrusted to a vocalist named Erba Robson. Erba was a fat, jolly fairy, who was a great favorite in such serio comic back numbers as "Never Take the Horseshoe from the Door," but you could no more imagine her as the heroine of a sensational drama than you could imagine Jack the Ripper conducting a lady's seminary. On the opening night the house was packed, principally with miners, and Erba's friends were out in force.

Everything went on smoothly until a portion of the drama was reached in which the heroine was supposed to repulse the advances of the villain, who had a mortgage on her papa's farm, and wanted to espouse her. Erba rolled her eyes and clawed the air. "I will accept no money offer for me hand!" she exclaimed in great shape.

"That's right!" yelled an enthusiastic miner in the gallery, "play yer hand out if you have better than ten spots!" That knocked "The Man from Texas" in the head, and made Miss Robson so mad she threw up her part as soon as the curtain fell.—Interview in Atlanta Constitution.

A Queer Peach Tree.

"Did you ever see anything like this?" said Mr. E. E. Kirby, ticket agent of the East Tennessee road, as he held up a peach seed as large as a man's fist.

"Well, I know you haven't. There's a peach inside of that seed, and the tree on which this peach grew is the only peach tree that I ever heard of that, instead of growing the seed on the inside of the peach, grows the peach on the inside of the seed.

"Some years ago while I was visiting in south Georgia, I grafted a peach twig on an Australian cherry tree. The twig bore fruit, but the fruit apparently was nothing but seeds. It was not disturbed, however, until they had grown very large, when one of the seeds were pulled and broken open. On the inside was a perfectly formed green peach.

"After that none of the seeds were disturbed till they had changed color from a light brown to a black. Then one of them was broken open and a ripe peach of a light yellow color was found on the inside."—Atlanta Journal.

STRANGERS YET.

Romantic Meeting of a Timid Chicago Girl with a Volunteer Chaperon.

I never pass Carroll avenue but I think of the pretty little story told to a group of friends one evening by one of our charming south side matrons. I was a country school ma'am in Vermont, receiving a salary of $25 a month, when I made up my mind to come to Chicago and learn stenography. I had a sister married and living in a suburb of the city. She promised to help me all she could, and I remained with her until I had finished studying and was ready for a position.

Having obtained the position I discovered that my limited income would not allow me to pay car fare to such a distance as my sister lived. As she and her husband were poor it was decided that I should look for a boarding place on the west side. I searched the papers diligently and found the desired haven on Carroll avenue.

At first I found it very comfortable and easy, and enjoyed coming home after a long day's work and settling myself to sewing or reading. But as the days grew shorter, and the nights set in earlier, I felt myself becoming afraid to walk the two blocks that lay between the street car corner and my room, and this fear was not diminished any after a man had stopped me one evening and I had rushed into the house frightened and breathless from running. It may be very silly to one who has never been afraid, but I suffered cruelly as the car neared my corner, and several nights I could not find the courage to get off, and remained on the car, riding several blocks past, and of course only prolonged the distance of the walk.

One fearfully dark and stormy evening the car was literally packed, and I stood holding on to a strap in the extreme front, when the loneliness of my position, my timidity and thoughts of an employer out of humor all day completely overcame me and I began to cry.

It seemed as if I could not leave the car and step into the darkness and storm. Presently I felt a hand touch me, and a voice said:

"What is the matter?"

"I am afraid to go home," I said. I was 19 years old, but I felt like a baby.

"Where do you get off?" asked the voice.

"At St. John's place," I replied, and just then the conductor called out the street, and I pushed my way to the rear platform and stepped off. As I did so the young man who had questioned me stepped off also, and said:

"I live up this way, and, if you will allow me, I shall see you home."

And all that winter, except the few nights when he did not chance to be on my car, for which I think he must have watched, he saw me home.

I never learned his name or where he lived, nor do I think he knew my name. He never stopped at the door to talk, nor presumed upon his kindness in any way, and when the long days came again he disappeared entirely, and I, soon after leaving the west side, have never seen or heard of him since.

I often think of the incident, though, and as I grow older it shows up to me in a very beautiful light, as compared with so many darker colors that go to make up the annals of evening life in a large city.—Chicago Letter.

Barber Wisdom.

Barbers are not partial to seeing ladies coming into the shop to get their hair cut, for, no matter how pretty the dear creatures look after having their hair cut, they never look as well as they did before, and their first look in the glass makes the fact apparent to them, and they invariably blame the barber for it—claim it was not cut as they directed. It is a fact that about nine out of ten bald headed men are all the time looking for something to make the hair grow, but you never heard of a barber investing a cent for that purpose, and another thing that is just a notion and just as senseless as to suppose that the hair can be restored to a bald head without the use of a wig, and that is that bay rum is beneficial to the face. If you want a good face dressing after shaving use hot soft water. Nothing else is as good.—Interview in Lincoln Journal.

Jewelers Never Get Rich.

"Jewelers never get rich," said a Chicago jeweler. "If we could secure only 10 per cent. of the profits which many people suppose we get we would make more money than we do now. There never has been but one rich jeweler in America. Tiffany, of New York, is a rich man, and he is the only exception. And he made most of his money in the stationery business. There are many rich men in almost any other line of business—rich dry goods merchants, rich hotel men, rich grocers, rich hardware dealers. But jewelers, who are quite generally believed to be wealthy as a class, are rarely outside of the well to do circle, financially speaking."—Chicago Mail.

A New Kind.

A Nevada paper wants convicted murderers dropped into the shaft of a mine in that state which is 896 feet deep. It says that a person falling will lose all consciousness after descending 400 feet, and the death to be found at the bottom of the shaft will be entirely painless and without any chance of bungling as on a gallows.—Detroit Free Press.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, MARCH 5, 1892.

H. H. GRANICE ..... EDITOR

WE are in receipt of the first issue of the Standard, a bright and newsy paper published in San Leandro by Weston P. Truesdell. The editor, in a "little business talk" with the business men of his town, which by the way is about the size of Sonoma, says:

As is generally known, the advertising patronage of a newspaper is an important factor in its business department—perhaps the most important of all. Again, the best indication abroad of a town's prosperity or non-prosperity is the appearance of its local papers. Where the papers are bright and enterprising, and their columns are well filled with advertisements of the town's business men, there will be found a flourishing, progressive community, and the stranger who looks over the papers knows it. On the other hand, when the local press is poorly written up and shows evidence of insufficient patronage, the reader is led to infer that the town is not a favorable one in which to start a business or to build a home and the inference is usually correct.

Here, then, is wherein lies the newspaper's purely business claim on the patronage of the local merchant. It is sometimes argued by the unthinking that advertising in a town paper does not pay—that it does not draw enough custom. Now, it is not claimed that every citizen who takes the paper turns the first thing on receiving it to the advertisements, and immediately rushes out to the grocer's, or the shoemaker's, or the druggists and buys a bill of goods.

But it is in the fact that the paper is sent to neighboring towns, cities and counties, and to distant States, taking everywhere with it a reflection of the business and social standing of the town in which it is published, and holding this mirror up before the public—it is in this fact that the intelligent, far-seeing citizen cannot fail to perceive that the town paper should present as creditable and thrifty appearance as possible—and to do this it must have the advertising support of the business houses. The small sum charged by village papers for advertising is amply repaid by the free advertising the town receives, and the improved appearance of the local press.

A Good Description—Little Ethel had never seen a toad before and having by chance discovered one in her flower-garden came running to the house, her face flushed with excitement, crying: "Mamma, come quick! There's a pocket-book hopping around out there with four legs on it."

A bright little boy was reprimanded by one of his parents for coming into the sitting-room with his face covered with dirt. He looked up at the parent with his big eyes and promptly replied: "I can't help it. We are made of dirt and it comes through my face.

Four-year-old Bertha, after watching her kitten wash its face for some time, gravely remarked, "I believe I'll call my cat 'Licorice,' it licks itself so much.

Little Dudley had learned what an eye-brow was; so when he saw a man with a mustache he called it a "mouth brow."

School teachers in England's country districts get the munificent sum of five shillings a week.

FLAVOR OF BREAD.

There is no baking powder which produces such sweet and tasteful food as the Royal Baking Powder. One of the greatest of the claims of the manufacturers of this powder is that it leavens without fermentation or decomposition, and that the exact equivalents of its constituents are used, whereby a perfectly neutral result is obtained, which invariably guarantees that particular and peculiar flavor in bread so much desired and appreciated by all. In fact, the oldest patrons of this powder declare that they get not only a superlative lightness of the bread, but that the biscuit, cakes, muffins, etc., never taste quite so sweet or so good as when they are raised by the Royal Baking Powder. This comes from its perfectly uniform combination of the best and purest materials, as has been shown to be true by the recent examinations made by both the United States and Canadian governments, which reveal the fact beyond a question that the Royal Baking Powder is the most scientifically compounded than any other in the market. The Royal gives a delicious flavor to the bread.

The San Francisco Board of Health gives valuable advice as to the most wholesome baking powder. The following report is published over the signatures of all the physicians of the Board.

"We, the members of the Board of Health of the city and county of San Francisco, cordially approve and recommend the Royal Baking Powder. It is absolutely pure and healthful, composed of the best ingredients, of the highest strength and character.

"In our judgment, it is impossible to make a purer or stronger baking powder than the Royal.

Beware Of Swindlers.

We have exposed, during the last year, many swindlers who advertise, under the name of medicine, vile compounds which only increase human suffering. To all who need a pure medicine and blood purifier, we can honestly recommend Sulphur Bitters.—Editor Sun.

Taken for a Crank.

A semi-fiendish delight often seems to possess people of strong nerves in sneering at those with weak ones. The irritability of the nervous hypochondriac is ridiculed as natural ill temper. The very genuine and distressing symptoms from which he suffers are made light of. "He" or "she is a crank!" is the cheerful sort of sympathy with which the nervous invalid meets from the unfeeling and the thoughtless. At the same time no complaint is more defined and real. none has a more easily explainable origin when it is chronic. Imperfect digestion and assimilation are always accompanied by nervous ability and anxiety. Build up the powers of assimilation and digestion with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and nervous symptoms, sick headaches and a generally feeble condition of the system are remedied. Remember that fearful ravages are produced by the la grippe among weakly, nervous people. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters cures it, and prevents malaria, rheumatism and kidney complaint.

MRS. GRAHAM'S

CUCUMBER and ELDER FLOWER CREAM.

Is not a cosmetic in the sense in which that term is popularly used, but permanently beautifies. It creates a soft, smooth, clear, velvety skin, and by daily use gradually makes the complexion several shades whiter. It is a constant protection from the effects of sun and wind, and prevents sun burns and freckles, and blackheads will not come while you use it. It cleanses the face far better than soap and water, nourishes and builds up the skin tissues and thus prevents the formation of wrinkles. It gives the freshness, clearness and smoothness of the skin that you had when a little girl. Every lady, young or old ought to use it, as it gives a more youthful appearance to any lady, and that permanently. It contains no acid, powder or alkali and is as harmless as dew and as nourishing to the skin as dew is to the flower. Price $1.00, at all druggists and hair-dressers, or at Mrs. Gervaise Graham's establishment, 103 Post Street San Francisco, where she treates ladies for all blemishes of the face and figure. Ladies at a distance treated by letter. Send stamp for her little book "How to be Beautiful,"

People with delicate stomachs find Ayer's Sarsaparilla agreeable to the taste, and, therefore, prefer it as a blood purifier to any other. This is one reason for its great popularity as a spring and family medicine. Safe, certain, and palatable.

Jas. Burns of this place has secured a judgment against George H. Maxwell, in the Superior Court of this county, for $9,950 and attorney fees amounting to $186.80. The suit and judgment is the outcome of the sale of the Burns place to Maxwell several years ago when the latter was engaged in buying up $5,000, $10,000, $20,000 and $75,000 ranches by the payment of small sums of money down.

The young grain on the lands of Senator Jones, recently reclaimed by W. B. Pless, is looking fine. The tract is said to be the richest farming land in the world. There is no end to the depth of the soil, which is a rich sediment and the more it is cultivated the richer it becomes. In a few years more these reclaimed meadow lands will be teeming with small farms tilled by hundreds of prosperous and contented farmers.

Officer Louis Breitenbach of Santa Rosa had an exciting chase after two burglars in that city last Saturday night. He captured one of the gentry and turned him over to a brother officer and then took after the other, whom he brought to bay after chasing him several blocks. The fellow upon coming to a standstill suddenly turned upon the officer, who grasped him by the shoulders. Then commenced a struggle for the mastery. The officer drew his revolver and attempted to club the burglar into submission. The man, however, had a head as hard as a stone and the blows appeared to give him renewed strength, and he finally succeeeded in slipping out of the officer's grasp, and darted away with great speed. Officer Breitenbach again took after the man and fired three shots in the hopes of bringing him to a standstill, but the shots only served to accelerate the burglar's speed, who finally escaped in the darkness. During the chase Breitenbach slipped and fell, and it was owing to this mishap that the second burglar escaped. He lodged the other in jail where he now lies awaiting trial.

ACQUITTED.

The Jury in the Perry Sears Case Out Only Three Minutes.

UNIVERSAL APPROVAL OF THE VERDICT

Mr and Mrs. Sears Receive a Perfect Ovation Upon Returning to Their Sonoma Home.

On Thursday afternoon between two and three o'clock a verdict of not guilty in the Sears case was reached by the jury in three minutes. The verdict upon being announced was received with loud applause by those present in the court room. This was one of the most remarkable trials that has ever taken place in Sonoma county on account of the great sympathy manifested everywhere for Perry Sears, who, through the machinations of designing enemies and the rashness of the man he shot and killed in defending himself, was put upon trial for an offense which he could in no wise have avoided except by sacrificing his own and perhaps his wife's life.

The trial, which has engaged the Superior Court in Santa Rosa the greater part of the past two weeks, was characterized by one of the most bitter prosecutions that has ever taken place in this county. But right, for for all that, has prevailed and to the delight of thousands of his friends in Sonoma Valley and elsewhere Perry Sears is now a free man. Mr. and Mrs. Sears arrived home from Santa Rosa last evening on the Donahue train, accompanied by J. P. Rodgers of Petaluma and Judge Pressley of Santa Rosa, counsel for Mr. Sears, who was ably defended. They were met at the depot by a large number of prominent people of Sonoma and vicinity and accorded a grand ovation. Bonfires burned, cannons boomed and the Sonoma Valley Brass Band of twenty-two pieces headed a procession of citizens who escorted Mr. and Mrs. Sears to the Union Hotel where speech making and congratulations were the order of the evening.

A Pleasant Party.

The Stevenot residence, situated a half a mile from Sonoma, was the scene of a pleasant gathering of young people on Friday evening of last week. The event being a candy pull, had a tendency to bring out a large number of the youth and beauty of Sonoma Valley. The main feature of the evening's amusement was the candy-pulling which caused much merriment, after which dancing commenced and was kept up until the wee sma' hours. During the evening a splendid supper was served. All pronounced this to be the most enjoyable event that has taken place in our midst for months. Mr. and Mrs. Stevenot and their interesting family are doing much towards making the evenings pass pleasantly for our boys and girls. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Stevenot, Mrs. A. F. Haraszthy, Mrs. H. Appleton. Misses Mamie Stevenot, Maggie Stevenot, Nellie Stevenot, Leoni Stevenot, Birdie Johnson, Lena Johnson, Loleita Haraszthy, Netalla Haraszthy, Kate McDonell, Pauline Bates, Birtha Campbell, Jennie Gaines, Clara Cheney, Josie Collins, Daisy Redmond, Loretta Redmond and Carrie Appleton. Messrs. Lathrop Dunn, George Rogers, Henry Bates, Claude Johnson, Johnnie McDonell, Willie Prunty, Oscar Campbell, Chas. Lowell, Fred. Lowell, Claude Burlingame, Adam Adler, Chas. Cheney, Leo Frisbie, Freddie Stevenot, Frank Redmond, Archie Stevenot and A. Anderson.

Public Receiving Vault.

The contract for building a public receiving vault in Mountain Cemetery has been let by the Sonoma Valley Exhibit Committee to Wm. Trudgen of this place an experienced stone mason. The vault when completed will be large enough to hold six caskets. It will be substantially built of white building stone, of which there is an abundance in this vicinity. This vault will be a great accommodation to the people of this valley, as Mountain Cemetery is a receptacle for the dead where any one can locate a burial plot free of cost, if we except the deed of conveyance from the city of Sonoma. In this cemetery lie the remains of hundreds of pioneers of Sonoma, beside whom repose in many instances their children, grand children and even great grand children.

Supervisor Cady's pet scheme, the making of a $10,000 map for the county, has been knocked in the head, the whole matter having been declared off by the Supervisors.

CITY TRUSTEES.

They Get Down to Business.

Plaza, Cemetery and Public Streets to be Improved.

The meeting of the City Trustees last Wednesday evening was characterized by a spirit of improvement and progress that stood out in bold contrast to the obstruction tactics that has cropped out in that body the past eighteen months. It is true that Trustee Wegner's proposition to sewer the town did not carry, but with that solitary exception every proposition looking toward the town's improvement that was proposed was carried unanimously.

Each individual member of the Board looked his sweetest, not omiting the austere Trustee Litzius, who beamed down on the INDEX-TRIBUNE man with a sad, sweet smile for the first time in lo! these many moons. The quartette, what with their billing and cooing, reminded one of four turtle doves or a brace of sweethearts trying to make up for lost time after a lovers quarrel.

The members present were Trustees Poppe, Wegner, Litzius and Bulotti. Trustee Weyl was absent, important business having called him to another part of the county.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, which were approved, Trustee Wegner reported that there was no immediate necessity of sidewalking the east side of the road-way from Poppe's wine cellar to the corner of the depot grounds.

On motion of Trustee Litzius Mrs. C. Poppe was granted a franchise to lay water pipes from her artesian well to her store, a distance of 1,200 or 1,500 feet, provided the applicant for the franchise erect a fire hydrant opposite her premises on east side of Plaza. Trustees Wegner and Litzius were appointed to lay out the line for the water pipes.

On motion of Trustee Wegner the Street Committee were authorized to expend the sum of $100 for improving Napa street beyond the Methodist Church. Fifty dollars was also appropriated for repairing the same street from Duhring's corner to the western terminus of that thoroughfare.

The sum of $300 was also appropriated, on motion of Trustee Wegner, for improving the Plaza.

Even little old First-street East south of Napa street was not neglected, and that thoroughfare was allowed an additional $25, on motion of Trustee Litzius, to complete improvements commenced last month. This street when finished will be an ornament to the town, growlers to the contrary notwithstanding.

An appropriation of $50 was likewise made for Second-street East north of Spain street.

When the matter of voting $100 toward building a public receiving vault in Mountain Cemetery, which is being constructed by the citizens of Sonoma Valley, the proposition was championed by Trustee Litzius, who moved that the amount be donated. His motion was seconded by Trustee Wegner and carried unanimously.

Trustee Bulotti, not to be behind time, moved that a road leading to the vault be constructed inside the cemetery grounds. Receiving a second from Trustee Litzius the motion was carried.

C. W. Engelbert, Chief of the Fire Department, appeared before the Board and talked Babcock fire extinguishers and fire hydrants until the hair on the heads of the devoted Trustees (if we except Trustee Poppe) fairly stood on end. The matter of the fire extinguishers and hydrants was referred to the Fire and Water Committee.

Clerk Breitenbach was instructed to give proper notice of the municipal election to be held on April 11th.

Trustee Bulotti moved that $25 be expended in repairing Spain street west of the Plaza and it was so ordered.

H. H. Granice appeared before the Board and urged that some definite action be taken in regard to a certain petition recently forwarded to the District Attorney, asking for the dismissal of a certain indictment. He stated that the petition had been signed by many leading citizens and property-owners of Sonoma; that he appeared before the Board as the representative of the friends of one of the most worthy families of Sonoma; that he had no apologies to offer for working in a humane and what he conceived to be a righteous cause, and all that was asked or expected was justice.

After a spirited discussion Trustee Bulotti moved that the matter be laid over, and it was so ordered.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

F. Duhring, curbing	$10 00
Lee Bulotti, street work	9 00
Jas. Landy, street work	2 00
Wm. Neu, cleaning fire apparatus	10 20
G. W. Sparks, salary and services	18 00
J. B. Small, contract work	104 17
F. Breitenbach, supplies	1 00
John Reve, street work	49 75
L. Modini, cleaning fire apparatus	1 00

The Board then adjourned.

Thus far in the season 20.72 inches of rain has fallen in this locality against 16.52 inches for corresponding time last season.

Large shipments of shade trees and fencing lumber have been arriving here lately to be used in improving the looks of this burg.

Rev. L. R. Woodward, Methodist parson, is the happy father of a 10-pound girl. May she live to be a comfort to her father and mother.

Judging from the broad smile that continually illumines the countenance of our young and popular farmer, Billy Minkel, something of a very agreeable nature must be about to befall him in the very near future.

Bright and early Sunday morning the silver tones of the Southern Pacific's pay car bell announced its arrival, and after a short but agreeable interview with Huntington's representative at this point proceeded on its way.

One of our embryo bucolic friends has just returned from the Bay City, where he has been undergoing treatment for a stubborn attack of lumbago, which he contracted in the hasp of his backbone whilst heroically endeavoring to rid his farm of rocks. This farm is situated west of here and the crop of rocks it has produced this spring is something beautiful to behold.

Quite a ripple of excitement was created among our marriageable young ladies, one morning last week, when Billy Garrison and Frank Carmer left for the county seat. Old dame gossip had it that two of our valley belles had availed themselves of leap year privileges and that the two fair young Adonis' were on their way to procure marriage licenses. But the contrary proved to be the case for Frank and Billy were subpœnaed as witnesses on the Sears trial and are now back again pursuing their single cussedness with increased energy.

To impound or not to impound! That is the question which has been agitating the minds of our citizens for several days. Some person, we never heard of him before—he must be great—has been taking a more than passing interest in the welfare of our poor wage workers, who are fortunate enough to own a cow or a horse in this community, and this great I AM has been magnanimous enough to appoint one of our citizens to the lotty and dignified position of a full blown village Pound Master. You of Sonoma city may be ahead of us in the extent of your beautiful Plaza grounds, but when it comes to a question of a cattle pound you are simply not "in it" with us. Divers are the opinions of our lawyers in regard to the constitutionality of this institution, but whether a legal concern or not its grim proportions now loom upon the once smiling plain, where once the poor man's cow or equine were wont to browse. Everything is to be in keeping with the dignity of this institution. The Pound Master himself is strictly business. He will always be found on duty, decked in a fiery red uniform. An observation tower 300 feet high will be immediately erected in the center of the pound plot and his dignity, the Pound Master will be elevated by electricity to the top thereof every morning, noon and night and by means of a powerful telescope he will search with an eager eye the country round for the form of a wandering quadruped. This officer's duties for the past few days must have been of a very arduous nature, for he has aged visibly within that short time. But the end is not, yet for we learn that the housewives of El Verano have clubbed together and ordered two dozen 3-legged stools, womans' favorite weapons. These articles are to be used in combing the Pound Master's hair whenever he is found trying to make a dirty sneak on their favorite "bossies." War is also to be soon declared on the canine race of this city, and already negotiations have been opened up with Jake Lindo, San Francisco's popular cow and dog catcher, to supply our Pound Master with two experienced vaqueros, who will be capable of yanking any full grown quadruped by the tail over the walls of our pound and in whose awful presence every cur of high and low degree will immediately become mesmerized and fall a helpless victim to their lariats. There is nothing small or contracted about our ideas of progress, you will quickly observe Mr. Editor, and in a very short time a graveyard will follow, and as none of our citizens are anxious to fill the mournful office of grave digger, you might act neighborly in the matter and help us out by inducing one of your two grave diggers to move over here and fill that position in our intended cemetery, and as I intend to have some interest in a paper which will soon see the light in this village, and to be known as the Sonoma Valley Hurricane, I trust you will try and induce the most peaceably inclined grave digger to cast his lot with us, for I have heard it whispered that one of your grave diggers is always anxious to have a newspaper editor or reporter for his breakfast. When our newspaper appears I shall be happy to place your interesting journal on our exchange list and till then adios.

When Does the Nineteenth Century End?

I have been pretty thoroughly convinced for years that not one person in five knows when this century will close, but I was much surprised to find the statement that but about eight years of this century remain. This would make 1899 the last year of this decade and century. The matter is important enough to correct, and is very easily made clear. The First century closed with the last day of the year 100; the Second with the last day of the year 200, and the Nineteenth century will end with the last day of the year 1900, which is nine years from New Year Day, 1892.—J. Ogden Kern in New York Sun.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SATURDAY, MARCH 5, 1892.

How Tom Jones Stopped a Runaway Team.

A gentleman who was down in the Indian Territory a few weeks ago told the following story: "I became acquainted with a deputy United States marshal, one Tom Jones, who for quickness and nerve surpasses any man I ever met. He has killed several men, but always in fair and open fight or in the line of duty. He is recognized as a game man in a region where personal bravery is common.

"Not long ago Jones set out to capture a fellow wanted for a violation of the law. He hired a pair of horses and a man to drive them. Night set in and they were in a wild part of the country, with which the officer was unacquainted. While they were driving along a rough piece of road the horses took fright and commenced running at full speed. It was pitch dark. The driver lost all control of the brutes and they plunged along at a headlong gallop.

"Suddenly two shots rang out on the air, and almost simultaneously both horses dropped dead in their tracks.

"It was a thing few men would have thought of, but with men of Jones' type the mind acts quickly in time of peril, and action follows closely on thought. He saw the only way to stop that team and save his life, perhaps, was to use his Winchester. He related the incident to me, and seemed to think it was a very commonplace affair."—Washington Post.

Strange Effect of a Snake Bite.

The scene was at White Sulphur Springs in the height of the season several years ago. A circus troop had been playing there for some days, which numbered among its attractions an Arab snake charmer. While waiting his turn to "go on" during a performance he was occupied in training a rattlesnake recently procured in the neighboring mountains. He said afterwards that he had an antidote in case of a snake bite, but had left it by accident at the last stopping place; so when this snake bit him he resorted to the Arab superstition of biting off the head of the snake, hoping by this heroic remedy to save his life.

But even this horrible experiment was of no avail, and though two or three physicians came almost instantly to his aid and every available means was used to save him, they soon saw that he was beyond human help, for he began to glide about with all the motions of a snake, biting from side to side as if at grass. He only lived a short time, and after his death what was the horror of all present to find that his body was striped in exact imitation of the loathsome reptile which had caused his death, so fully had the poison penetrated his whole system.—Dallas, (Tex.) News.

Some Diminutives.

An examiner was dealing with grammatical diminutives, and particularly with the force of the suffix kin—mannikin, a little man, etc. On his asking the lads to give him a few examples of such "diminutives," a number of eager hands were soon raised.

The gentleman, much gratified at such a ready response to his question, pointed to one of the lads for an answer.

"Lambkin, a little lamb," was the reply.

"Very good, indeed," said the examiner, and pointed to another lad.

"Tomkin, a little Tom," was the answer.

The gentleman somewhat demurred at this, but finally accepted it. He then pointed to still another lad.

"Buskin, a little 'bus!" was the response.

The examiner's countenance fell. "Now, my lads," he pleaded, "do take time before you speak. The last answer was altogether wrong." And he pointed to a little fellow behind, who had been trying to attract his attention. "Well, you, my lad?"

"Pumpkin, sir, a little pump!"—London Tit-Bits.

Everlasting Car Wheels.

In an account of the works of the Northern Railroad of France it is stated that they have an ingenious plan in the interests of economy of making wheels for cars by bending up seven pieces of bar iron in such a shape that the center fits inside of a band or false felloe, which, in turn, is hammered into a groove in the tire. Felloe and bar are riveted together and the bars bent round to the center of the wheel and their ends then have a mold placed below them; cast iron is then run in, forming the hub, which is afterward bored out and the cast steel axle forced in by 55,000 to 66,000 pounds hydraulic pressure. The life of the center of the wheel is said to be practically interminable under ordinary conditions, and the cheapness is such that they are now adopted almost entirely.

Effect of Camphor on Seeds.

The alleged power of camphor to awaken seeds, or stimulate their germination, has been shown by the experiments of M. Henry de Varigny to have no real existence. Various kinds of seed were sown in sand saturated with water containing camphor, as advised by horticulturists, and the germination of all was slower, instead of more rapid, than that of similar seeds in water without camphor. Germination was even retarded by camphor vapor in the air, the water having no camphor.—Boston Transcript.

"German Syrup"

Here is an incident from the South—Mississippi, written in April, 1890, just after the Grippe had visited that country. "I am a farmer, one of those who have to rise early and work late. At the beginning of last Winter I was on a trip to the City of Vicksburg, Miss., where I got well drenched in a shower of rain. I went home and was soon after seized with a dry, hacking cough. This grew worse every day, until I had to seek relief. I consulted Dr. Dixon who has since died, and he told me to get a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. Meantime my cough grew worse and worse and then the Grippe came along and I caught that also very severely. My condition then compelled me to do something. I got two bottles of German Syrup. I began using them, and before taking much of the second bottle, I was entirely clear of the Cough that had hung to me so long, the Grippe, and all its bad effects. I felt tip-top and have felt that way ever since." PETER J. BRIALS, Jr., Cayuga, Hines Co., Miss.
